The 2008 meeting of GALANA (Generative Approaches to Language Acquisition – North America) will be held at the University of Connecticut in Storrs, from the 4th to the 6th of September 2008.

The special theme of this GALANA will be "Language Acquisition and Cross-Linguistic Variation": the relationship between theories of language acquisition, on the one hand, and theories of grammatical variation across languages.

This theme will be addressed by each of our invited speakers:

Paula Fikkert (Radboud University)
James Huang (Harvard University)
Lydia White (McGill University)

The preliminary program for the conference can be found at http://linguistics.uconn.edu/galana3/program.html
