NACEP National Conference
Charting the Course: Navigating the Future of Concurrent Enrollment

October 23 – 25, 2011
Hilton: Mystic at the Aquarium
Mystic, Connecticut

Join us for a colloquium addressing new possibilities for concurrent enrollment partnerships. Learn about trends in college preparation and the new technologies and standards being embraced by high schools to ensure that students graduate college and career ready. Explore the role of concurrent enrollment and share best practices with other programs preparing to chart their course and navigate the future.

Join the national dialogue
• Explore emerging trends affecting concurrent enrollment
• Network with concurrent enrollment professionals and experts in college transition and success
• Dialogue on partnership strategies and the latest research findings
• Standards and accreditation for concurrent enrollment programs
• Approaches to professional development for high school instructors teaching college courses

Dr. David T. Conley as the 2011 conference keynote speaker
NACEP welcomes Dr. David T. Conley as the 2011 conference keynote speaker. Dr. Conley is Professor of Educational Policy and Leadership in the College of Education and the founder and director of the Center for Educational Policy Research (CEPR) at the University of Oregon. He has spent 20 years as a school-level and central office administrator, an executive in a state education department, and as a teacher in two public, multicultural, alternative schools before entering higher education. Dr. Conley is a participating member of the Common Core State Standards Initiative.

For conference details and registration information visit: www.nacep.org

Come for the conference, but stay for the color! Plan to stay an extra day to explore autumn in New England and all that Mystic, CT has to offer. Visit www.mystic.org for "a breath of fresh air between New York and Boston."